Questions regarding the appearance of nepotism have to do with whether there is accountability for financial self-dealing (corruption, enriching oneself), and accountability for poor job performance that impedes the well-being of the organization.

none are part of denominations with accountability outside of the local church (that they lead).

There is an independent entrepreneurial style that characterizes the Evangelicals for Trump. If you can get an audience and raise money from donors, you can be a leader of an "evangelical" organization.

Out of about fifty "Evangelicals for Trump" who have been photographed with Trump, I only count six with a seminary degree (Jack Graham, Robert Jeffress, Richard Land, Jim Garlow, Gregg Matte, and Jack Hibbs). None are currently professors.
