This certainly seems like radio host Eric Metaxas punching an anti-Trump protester on his bike. It is what Eric was wearing and a woman cries out in alarm: "Eric!"

Eric Metaxas says one can't distinguish Trump's impulsive cruelty from Jesus' clearing the temple of greedy merchants because they're both forms of anger. "Or must one now assume Jesus was an angry white male without access to mental-health care?"

1/ Thread on Franklin Graham's ethics in response to his post about the Ten Commandments

2/ Franklin Graham's posts are typically among the top 10 viewed posts on Facebook in the United States in a given week. For example, during the week of August 17th, one of his posts was number #1.

3/ And I think it is quite likely this one below will be the #1 post of the week.

The fun of baseball is the amazing plays. But the reason for kids to play baseball is to learn to recover from the individual embarrassing humiliating failures in front of crowds of people—which happen every game. Your heart sinks, cheeks flush, rage surges. Then you try again.

There is crying in baseball and that is because it is humiliating to strike out, walk in a run, or make an error, and so you feel like quitting. BUT, baseball players learn to keep @joshuapsteele I argue that Barth and Bonhoeffer agreed on much. dukespace.lib.duke.edu/dspace/handle/... But Bonhoeffer had a much more Lutheran / Anglican understanding of the sacraments (see Discipleship) than Individual violence against someone because you're sick of them and their filthy mouth and screaming does not preserve order. It contributes to the further breakdown of order.

When "order" and "protect my way of life" is your ultimate goal, any means to achieve it is legitimate.
